RIOTING STARTS IN BOGOTA.

COLOMBIANS BLAME GOVERN-MENT FOR PANAMA'S REVOLT.

Mobs Parade the Streets, Crying "Down with Marroquin!"-News That the United States Has Recognized the New Republic Is Kept From the People.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.-What might have been expected has happened at Bogota. the Colombian capital. Having ascertained at last, des ite the efforts of the Government to prevent the news from becoming known, the people of the Isthmus have proclaimed an independent republic and driven all Colombian soldiers out of their territory, the inhabitants of Bogota are seeking to vent their fury on President Marroquin, his Ministers and members of his family.

News of mobs, mass meetings and riots came to the State Department this morning in a telegram from United States Minister Beaupré, dated Nov. 9. A hostile demonstration had been made in front of the President's palace, the residence of a menter of his family had been stoned and cries of "Down with Marroquin!" were heard in the streets.

A clash occurred between a mob and Colombian troops, and some persons were wounded. Mr. Beaupré had not been attacked or threatened and was not apprehensive. His residence was being guarded by Colombian troops.

Curiously enough, there was nothing in Mr. Beaupré's despatch to indicate that he had received the telegram from the State Department sent on Nov. 4, telling of the recognition of the Isthmian Government by the United States. Mr. Beaupré does not even say that he knows of the action of this Government or that it is known in Bogota. It is believed by the State Department that Mr. Beaupré has not received the telegram of Nov. 4, but that the Colombian Government knows that the United States has recognized the separatists and is keeping the news from the people.

The telegram from Mr. Beaupré said that there was a great deal of public excitement in Bogota. Large crowds paraded the streets on Nov. 8, crying "Down with Marroquin!" There was a mass meeting denounc ing the President and calling for a change of government. Hundreds gathered at the palace and their orator, a prominent national General, called for the resignation of the President. This gathering was dispersed by troops. Several were wounded, but there were no fatalities.

The city is now under martial law and well guarded by troops. The legation of the United States is under protection of the Government, but there is no indication of a hostile demonstration against it. The residence of Lorenzo Marroquin has been attacked by stoning.

Lorenzo Marroquin is supposed to be President Marroquin's son.

ARMY'S GUNS WOULDN'T SHOOT

NEW YORKER WHO BOUGHT THEM FOR VENEZUELANS SUES.

Weird, Uncanny Romance," Says Counsel for the Defendant, the M. Hartley Co., of Allegation That Andrade Was Beaten by His Own Remington Rifles.

That the new American guns wouldn't shoot is alleged to be the real reason why former President Andrade of Venezuela failed to unseat Castro, the dictator, after Castro and his troop of South American revolutionists had driven Andrade and his followers from the capital two years ago. This reason was given yesterday by former United States Senator John M. Thurston and Robert Leslie Moffett, as attorneys for Thomas E. Evans & Co., before Supreme Court Justice Clarke on an argument in the suit of Mr. Evans against the M. Hartley Company, dealers in firearms and ammunition in this city, to recover $31,900.

According to Messrs. Thurston and Moffest, the vanguard of Andrade's troops were armed with Remington rides and cartridges furnished by the M. Hartley Company and at the most critical battle of the war discovered that the cartridges didn't fit the guns, and therefore could not be exploded, and those that could be fitted were not uniform as to rims, with the result that the shell ejectors would not work.

As a result of all this, the plaintiffs allege, the decisive battle of the war was won by Castro, between 600 and 700 of the flower of Andrade's army were left dead on the field and a number of others had legs or arms shot off and will never be able to fight again; whereas it had been reasonably expected that this would happen to the flower of Castro's army.

Senator Thurston and Mr. Moffett propose, when the case comes to trial, to exhibit to a New York jury some of the yeterans of this unfortunate battle and to have them tell on the witness stand what happened when they tried to ambush Castro's army and depended on American guns and ammunition for a victory.

Evans & Co. are suing for $31,000, the money they say they paid for the gens and ammunition, and for $50,000 damages for their less of prestige among South Ameritheir less of prestige among South Americals who are in the habit of purchasing firearms in this country.

Bainbridge Colby, for the M. Hartley Company, filed a demurrer to the joining of the two suits, and while yesterday's argument was merely on the demurrer it served to bring out the Venezuelan end of the case.

Mr. Colly referred to the contention of the plaining attorneys as "a weild, uncanny recommendant a fermatic story," and Mr. romance and a dramatic story," and Mr Moffett returned the compliment by calling the depurper "frivolous" the demurrer "frivolous." Only scraps of the story of the Andrade

Only scraps of the story of the Andrade affair came out in the argument, but after Justice Clarke had announced that he would reserve his decision O. W. Marshall, the New York representative of Evans & Co., who has an office at 41 Wall street, told this story of the defeat of Andrade, which he said he had got from Andrade's fiscal agent in this city who got it from Andrade's him. in this city, who got it from Andrade him-

The vanguard of Andrade's army occupied an impregnable position and, armed as they were with the new American rifles and plenty of ammunition, they expected an easy time of it. But when the battle opened and at the first discharge the carticles stuck in the rifles, the vanguard ridges stuck in the rifles, the vanguard fell back disorganized and a rout of the entire army occurred. Between 600 and 700 were killed.

We are suing for the money we paid for these defective weapons and ammunition and will prove our case by the mained veterans of the fight at Barancas, some of whom are in the

The attorney for the M. Hartley Company said vesterday that they were not trying their case in the newspapers, and would make no statement. Mr. Marshall couldn't explain why Andrade's men didn't try the American rifles and cartridges before going into battle with them.

CHICAGO STRIKE IS ON. Street Car Men Vote to Go Out This Morn ing-Trouble Feared.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 .- By an overwhelming "strike vote," taken shortly before midnight, 3,500 employees of the Chicago City Railway Company were ordered to go out at 4 o'clock this morning, with the intention of tying up all the south trunk lines of the surface railway and all its branches. With the exception of mail cars or trains bearing United States mail, it is considered doubtful if a single surface car operated by the Chicago City Railway Company will make its run to-day, and rioting is apprelended by the police should the company attempt to oppose the strikers' cohorts of pickets.

Around the various car barns the closest watch will be kept both by the police and the striking trainmen, who will endeavor to prevent a single passenger car or cable train from leaving the barns.

SUBMARINES TESTED AGAIN. Less Visible Than Torpedo Boats at Night -Manœuvres in the Dark.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 11 .- In Narragansett Bay this evening there was an elaborate test to determine the usefulness of submarine boats in naval warfare. the purpose being to see if they were less visible at night than surface boats; if they could be navigated successfully and safely in the dark, and if the playing upon them of numerous searchilghts hampered the making of observations from their conning

The test partook of the nature of a sham battle, in which Fort Adams and the tor pedo station, with strong searchlights and large parties of army and navy officers acting as observers, and the tug Peoria, anchored west of the torpedo station and using a powerful searchlight, were opposed to the submarine boats Moccasin Adder and Plunger and the surface boats

McKee and Morris and Torpedo Boat No. 1. Of the six craft affoat, the Adder alone ived through the battle, and she succeeded in eluding all the watchers and getting into a position so close to the tug Peoria that she easily could have annihilated her. was, in fact, a clean cut victory for the Ad der, which was in command of Lieut. Frank L. Pinney. On the whole, the battle was very exciting to those who participated in it, as the night was dark and under the conditions the powerful searchlights shone with great brilliancy. The watchers at Fort Adams picked up with some little difficulty the submarine boats Moccasin and Plunger but they searched in vain for the Adder It was learned that the navigation of submarine boats in the dark was practicable and that the playing upon them of powerful searchlights did not much hamper their officers in running them or making observations from their conning towers fairly well. When the light was not playing upor the boats, very good vision could be obtained from the submarines. It was proved that the submarines were less visible in the dark than the surface boats.

The submarine boats were run in a half ibmerged condition.

COP ASTRIDE A RUNAWAY. O'Brien Crawled From the Wagon an Stopped the Horse.

In stopping a runaway horse attached a delivery wagon yesterday Policeman William J. O'Brien of the East Thirty-fifth street station was kicked by the animal and so badly hurt that he had to be removed to his home at 233 East Ninetyfourth street. The horse became unmanageable at Fourth avenue and Thirtysecond street, and Edward Herbert of 77 Henry street, the driver, could not control him. When the horse started to run away

O'Brien stopped him. O'Brien's post extends from Thirty-second street to Thirty-fourth on Fourth avenue, and as Herbert was going north, he jumped in the wagon to ride two blocks to see if Herbert could manage the horse At Thirty-fourth street, as O'Brien was about to get out, the horse started to run iway a second time.

Herbert turned the animal west into Thirty-fourth street, and then lost the reins. Near Madison avenue Herber dropped out of the wag on to the roadway. O'Brien knew that the runaway could not cross Fifth avenue without a collision, so tride of the horse.

When he got the reins he vanked the horse up so suddenly that the animal fell about fifty feet east of Fifth avenue. The policeman went down under him. Several other policemen at the Fifth avenue crossing went to his rescue and liberated him.

The request was refused and the house was stoned, every window in the lower floor being broken. Policeman Frank Rigbee asked Dr. Scarta to put an end to the trouble by taking in the flag. INSULTED ARMY IN A NOVEL. German Officer Who Wrote "In a Little Garrison Town" Convicted. Special Cable Desputch to THE SUN.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.-Military and general ircles were keenly interested in the trial at Metz of Lieut. Bilse, a retired officer of the German Army, who was charged with insulting his superiors and comrades in a novel he wrote, entitled "In a Little Garrison Town." The book exposed the vices of German officers, and the characters coincided too exactly with certain officers at Forbach, where Lieut. Bilse was formerly stationed.

The trial lasted three days and resulted in the conviction of the accused, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and dismissal from the service.
